RELIEF ATTEMPT FAILS

Ten Thousand Men Captured as Result

Forces.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, April 29.—Major General Charles Townshend, commander of the British forces besieged at Kut-el-Amara, Mesopotamia, by Turkish forces since last December, has surrendered. This information was issued in a British official statement contained this afternoon.

The official statement added that General Townshend destroyed all his guns and munitions before surrendering.

Force of 10,000 Men.

The British force which surrendered at Kut el Amara, amounts to about 10,000 men. The following announcement was made:

"After a resistance protracted for 145 days and conducted with a gallantry and fortitude that will be forever memorable, General Townshend has been compelled by final exhaustion of his supplies to surrender.

"Before doing so, he destroyed his guns and munitions.

"The force under him consists of 2,000 British troops of all ranks and services, and some 8,000 Indian troops and their followers."

General Townshend probably was driven to surrender to avoid starvation of his force. A recent official Turkish communication said the position of the British at Kut el Amara was critical, and that they were expecting to receive small supplies of food by aeroplane.

Failed to Get Supplies.

An official statement received yesterday from London showed that a last effort to send supplies to the garrison had failed. It was announced that ships laden with supplies had been sent up the Tigris and had been founded about four miles east of the city.

Less than a score of miles away on the banks of the Tigris below the city is a relief army which for months had been attempting to reach the besieged forces of General Townshend.

A few weeks ago several victories were announced and hope ran high in England that the mission would succeed. Of late, however, the Turkish resistance has increased and aided by floods they have been able to hold the British in check.

Expedition Said Failure.

No official figures have been given out as to the number of troops which set forth from the Persian gulf in November of 1915, on an expedition which has now been abandoned.

Officially the number has been estimated as high as 50,000 but it was probably considerably smaller than this. This force has suffered heavy losses in several battles with the Turks. Since that time it has been besieged by a large army of Turks cut off from all communication with the world except by wireless. They defended themselves successfully in repulsing expeditions about the city, but Turks at length desisted from their efforts to take the place by storm and decided to starve out the British.

From time to time General Townshend sent reports of the situation. It has been known of late that the situation was becoming a desperate one for the British.

For some time after the Townshend expedition started out, German aviation was steadily successful. It pushed up the Tigris and Euphrates until in September of 1915, it defeated the Turks decisively in an encounter at Kut el Amara, which later was to be the scene of the British surrender.

Came Near to Bagdad.

Then the invaders pushed on to within a few miles of Bagdad, their efforts defeated the Turks at Ctesiphon, but the Turks reinforced, compelled them to retire hastily to Kut el Amara.

A few weeks after it became evident that the army at Kut el Amara would be unable to fight its way out, a relief expedition was dispatched. This force encountered comparatively little opposition in early stages of march up the river, but as it drew nearer Kut el Amara it was opposed by formidable bodies of Turkish troops on both sides of the Tigris below the invaded town. Throughout the Mesopotamian campaign, the fighting has been heavy and the losses severe.

On April 1, it was admitted the Turkish army up to that time had lost 15,000 men. Since then there have been several important battles between the British and the Turks.

Paris, April 29.—The battle of Verdun may now be considered as ended, according to opinion prevailing in French military circles.

Only the recent French official reports, but the German announcement states nothing important had developed in the Verdun region.

It is nearly two months since the German offensive made such a violent display of force.

Paris, April 29.—The capture of a German position near Avocourt and Hill 304, on the Verdun front, was announced today.

The war office this afternoon says this attack was prevented by French artillery, which dispersed the German troops.

A vigorous attack was made on French trenches east of Phinney farm, but the Germans were repulsed with heavy losses.

British Casualties.

London, April 29.—British casualties this week as compared with those in March, are slightly in excess of those in March. The total from all 1915 of operations is 1,255 officers and 19,255 men, compared with 1,107 officers and 18,255 men in March.

At La Crosse.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, April 29.—Factories at Prairie du Chien were obliged to close down today and one section of the city was surrounded by water when the flood struck that ancient Wisconsin town a few miles south of La Crosse. The river is higher at Prairie du Chien than it has been for nineteen years, and is still going up.

In the north, there is no communication with the mainland except by boats, and all the houses are in water several feet deep.

The bridge connecting the fourth ward with the town proper, was washed away today.

The Shaw Lumber mill and Iroquois Paper Button factory are under water and the summer's run of logs, belonging to the former company, are fast being washed away.

In other parts of Prairie du Chien water is also rising fast and occupants of homes on Main street are preparing to move.

Wagon roads out of Prairie du Chien are impassable with a foot to five feet of water running over them. The land all about is under water and hay and corn planted last fall have been washed out and ruined.

The river at La Crosse is stationary.

INDUSTRIAL UNREST
THROUGHOUT COUNTRYSecretary of American Federation of Labor Says Many Men to Strike for Shorter Hours.

Washington, April 29.—Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, in a May day review of the labor situation throughout the country, declared today there was greater industrial unrest than has preceded for several years and it would be impossible to estimate the number of workers who would go on strike May 1st, most of them for a shorter work day.

"There is a greater unrest on this May 1st than has been manifested in many previous years," said he. "To some this condition is alarming. To me it is encouraging, for I believe it is a sign of life of progress."

Workers are demanding an eight-hour day and I venture the opinion most of the large strikes today, either now or prospective, are because of this shorter work day demand.

"Thinking men agreed that long hours are economical for no one. Physicians are agreed that long hours exhaust the body cells, making it impossible for them to function, thereby dooming them to a shorter life."

"It is impossible to estimate the number of workers who will be on strike May 1st for the reason that this content cannot be tabulated or placed in statistical form."

A factor in the developing present conditions is the decrease in number of aliens who have come to our shores since the European war. This has lessened the policy of many employers in trusting industries who have maintained unemployed workers at their factory gates to menace the employees who would better conditions."

DENIES CONFESSION
TO WIDOW'S MURDERChicago Lad Repudiates First State-

Mrs. Middleton.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 29.—Edgar Hettinger, the nineteen year old boy who, according to the police, yesterday confessed he killed Mrs. Agnes Middleton the night of April 4th, today repudiated the confession.

In the office of Police Captain Meagher, the boy told his mother, Mrs. John Colby, that the confession was not true.

The police version of confession was that Hettinger entered Mrs. Middleton's flat, locked the door to her bedroom and struck her repeatedly on the head with a hammer, afterwards slashing her throat with a razor.

Associated Press Correspondent Who Visits Irish Capital Says End of Rebellion is Question of Time.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dublin, April 27, via London, April 29.—Fifteen hundred or so armed men of the Sinn Fein had a hold on Ireland's capital today. After four days of fighting their rebel flag still flew from a number of central points.

Since Monday, some of the chief positions in the city have been in the hands of the rebels. In defending the strongholds against regular troops and Irish nationalist volunteers, the rebels are fighting with desperation for their lives, which they know may be forfeited on account of treason.

Gun Fire in Streets.

Regulars now command all the rebel positions, the fall of which is merely a question of time. The streets of Dublin were deserted today except for sentries and military guards. Business was at a standstill. Civilians peeped anxiously from behind curtained windows. Field guns were backing, machine guns rattling, and rifle fire was patterning, apparently from every quarter at the same time.

When the Associated Press correspondent landed early this morning at the quay near the customs house the pinging of bullets of rifles used by snipers in the vicinity was frequent. Augustine Birrell, the secretary for Ireland, was in the city today. As he stepped ashore he shouted:

"I wish you luck, gentlemen. I don't know what will happen to you, now that you are here."

Soldiers and rebels fired at each other from street corners, wharves, roofs and windows. Sentries with fixed bayonets and loaded rifles stationed before gunbunk destroyed the commands to halt. Naval guns joined and added to the deafening gunfire.

Position of Rebels.

From the quay, the respective positions could be seen. The rebels were holding a square section of territory from the point where Liberty hall stood, before a gunbunk destroyed the area as far as Sackville street to St. Stephens Green and the four courts district, and along the southern side of the river to the Butt and O'Connell bridges. A mounted police force of 100 men in a four mill and a disused distillery opposite the Northwall station.

LAY REVOLT TO IRISH SECRETARY

Augustine Birrell.

Augustine Birrell.

British newspapers, even the Liberal organs, are demanding the resignation of Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, as a result of the Sinn Fein uprising. They declare Birrell should have been prepared for any such revolt and nipped it in the bud before it assumed such serious proportions. Premier Asquith declared that the failure of Birrell to take precautionary action was not due to any decision of the cabinet.

who, the correspondent says, have been picked off by Sinn Fein snipers for no other reason than that they were believed to be loyal.

The cordons of troops are being drawn gradually but surely around the rebel strongholds. The authorities are carrying on their difficult task with the greatest forbearance. Every effort is being made to avoid unnecessary bloodshed and danger.

The Times published an account by an eye witness of the Dublin uprising, which emphasizes the excellent organization of the rebels and the thoroughness of their efforts to prevent a rioting. This account says that the rebels are not molested in the streets. There was an effort to show against the government, not against the population. There was no violence against private persons.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, April 29.—Miss Myrtle Patterson is a week end visitor with friends at Baraboo.

M. J. McGowan, claim agent for the St. Paul railway, was in the city Friday to adjust the claim of Fred Dillman, who was injured while working on the section recently.

The Edgerton Cigar company has started to remove the old building which was damaged by fire, preparatory to erecting a new building on the site.

The pumps which are used to pump out the water at the clay pits have been in operation the past few days, and work on the yards will be started as soon as possible.

A dozen cans of trout fry were planted in streams in the vicinity of Edgerton yesterday. Frank Ash, James Keller and Frank Bury have the work in charge. These fish are sent out by the state to stock the different streams throughout the state.

The high school juniors held their annual prom last evening and met with success in every respect. The Badger orchestra of Madison furnished the music in a most pleasing manner, playing all the late dances, which were enjoyed by the dancers. During the evening Miss Florence Jack and Leona Post favored the audience with a flute and violin duet, which was well appreciated. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion. There were a good many out of town people in attendance. The junior prom is the social event of the season and always looked forward to with the anticipation of a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. James Peters returned to Lake Mills last evening, after a few days spent with friends in this city.

Tallman Thorson of Cambridge was a business caller in this city yesterday.

The funeral of the late Lester Carpenter was held from the home this afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. Wm. Hooton officiated. Burial took place at the family lot in the Albion cemetery. He was born in Albion, Prairie sixty-three years ago, and had a long and useful life.

From this union one daughter was born, Miss Melva, of this city who, together with her widow, are left to mourn his loss. He retired from the farm twelve years ago to make Edgerton his home. The deceased had been a sufferer from cancer for many years, which was the immediate cause of his death Thursday, April 27th. During his long and trying illness he was always cheerful, a pleasant man to visit, and was greatly missed by all who knew him.

Mrs. Martin Gullikson of Stoughton has been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. George Price, for a few days.

C. G. Biderman was a business caller at Jefferson last evening.

PROBLEMS OF TODAY
SIGNS OF PROGRESS
SAYS J. ADAM BEDE

LECTURER-HUMORIST SOUNDS OPTIMISTIC NOTE IN ADDRESS LAST EVENING

ENJOY FINE BANQUET

Ladies' Night Meeting of Twilight Club is Social and Intellectual Success.—Concert by Blind Students' Orchestra.

Problems of a thousand and one varieties which are piling up ahead of the American people today are merely the signposts of a fast advancing civilization, which instead of being discouraging should encourage, according to J. Adam Bede, former congressman from Minnesota, lecturer and humorist, in an address Friday evening at the Ladies' Night banquet of the Twilight club at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Time and patience are the greatest factors in the solution of these problems which confront America, the speaker contended, and it must be remembered that before a problem can be solved a majority of our 100,000,000 people must agree upon a program.

Bede's lecture pleased the audience. His lecture on the topic, "Problems and Progress," was punctuated by rare fund of anecdotes, and a liberal seasoning of good will. His illustrations were manifold and conclusive. His speech was polished and eloquent and his manner such as to inspire the confidence and respect of his hearers. His message was optimistic, hopeful for the future, pointing out the improvements of the present over the past, and emphasizing the advantages which the great bulk of the American people are enjoying in their "pursuit of happiness."

Last evening's meeting of the Twilight club ranked high among the many "firsts" of the season. An excellent banquet was served in faultless style; table decorations of potted plants and Easter lilies with favors of various kinds were attractive; the music by the orchestra of the state school for the blind was most delightful; and the address, or addresses, because the introductory remarks by W. S. Jeffries, co-master, ranked with those of J. Bede in high appreciation.

The concert program given by the orchestra of the state school during the banquet hour proved one of the evening's treats and each number was greeted with enthusiastic applause. The services of the orchestra was complimentary and at the close of the evening a special vote of thanks was passed by the club and extended to Superintendent Hooper and each member of the orchestra.

In the last seventy-five years this country has seen a great transformation, said Mr. Bede in launching into the body of his address, "and with the transformation has come a wealth of problems. Where on a plain of problems were located the wagon shop, the blacksmith shop and the shoe shop, there is the great metropolis. The country is spanned by a network of steel rails and the telegraph connects every village and hamlet with the big cities."

Progress Brings Problems. "The American farmer has thrown the fall to the scrap heap and used the grain binder and the improved modern thrasher. Even the straw is stacked by hot air and the same as we run our politics with the aid of the machinery. You never see a man with a hoe nowadays. If you get up early some morning you may see a woman with a hoe, but you can't sell a man anything he can't sit down on. In fact, the farmers in Dakota claim they have to build gymnasiums on their farms so as to give their hired help a chance to exercise."

"We have taken the burden out of the home by modern inventions and as a result we have made millionaires, and with the millionaires have come problems. It isn't such a hard thing to become a millionaire. All you have to do is to figure out some invention that you can sell to the American people and if you can make the profit of a cent on each one, you will have a million dollars and you wouldn't be a robber either if you gave value received. No man standing alone can be a millionaire. Society, which is necessary for the making of great fortunes, has enough interest in those fortunes to say that they shall not be used to the hurt of society."

"Some people have the idea that a few old men are sitting up nights down in Washington making problems for us. Nothing could be farther from the truth. They don't start anything at Washington, nor even a problem. We send the problems down to Washington faster than they can take care of them. Another fallacy which we often hear is that the laws made at Washington and at Madison govern us. But laws are made for the delinquent. No neighbors are civilized there is no need to look any doors, but I live in a modicum community, it would take more than the standing army to protect me."

"It is civilization which controls us and congress at Washington responds to its dictates. Sometimes the response comes to mere excitement and we throw fits into legislation and think that we have laws. What we need is a little slower, saner thinking in the matter of lawmaking."

"A few years ago great freight trains traveled across the prairies and the hickmen scrambled across the tops of the cars, turning out the old-fashioned hand brakes. The air brake and patent coupler were invented and there was an untold saving in casualties among railroad employes, as well as an economic gain. But someone got rich on account of it. But would we go back to the old method?"

"Reason for Pessimism. "We find many men who are not optimistic, but out of the hundred men you will find who are kicking, ninety percent of them ought to kick the answer. Why is it that people think that the world is growing worse? It's because we have the telegraph, the ocean cable, wireless and the fast printing press, and we get the news as fast as it happens. If there was one bad man in a hundred at the little settlement at the country crossroads, we wouldn't condemn the rest, nor would we think it was such a large percentage. Apply the same ratio to this whole country today and you have a million persons who constitute something of a problem. The news we read is principally about the minority. A man may live in a happy home, years with his own family, but let him a day in some other family and there's a scandal."

"There are just three things that I would teach the boys and girls of today: First, to know the rights of others; second, to respect the rights of others; and third, to grasp opportunities."

"Our young people should be made to understand these things. They should be impressed with the fact that the rights of the youngest and least respected. They must be shown how to improve their opportunities and thus they can aid in the solution of our problems. The fact that there are 20,000,000 acres of land in this country today, which are left idle, is a great tradition of this nation of ours. Its mighty principles of liberty and independence, is the greatest safeguard that we have for the future."

"But why solve all these problems? In order that we may secure happiness. Or rather in order that we may attain one of those inalienable rights of which Thomas Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Independence which is the 'pursuit of happiness.' Happiness is something which we never quite attain, pursue it with what avidity we may."

"Don't think that the persons who come nearest to happiness are the rich, or the great. Rather we will find them among the great middle class in the cities and in the myriad of farm homes across the length and breadth of this land. The young man and the young woman who put their heart and their savings into a home, who are able to supply their material and cultural wants, not too abundantly, will some nearest to happiness. And when divine Providence intends us to be happier, he will drop down a pair of wings and will take us home."

World Growing Better. "With the facing of every great problem comes progress. In building the Panama canal Americans exceeded not so much in their engineering ability, but in surmounting the problems of sanitation. They were able to catch the mosquito and remove his sting. Let us hope that science will make enough progress out of the European war to make up in some small way for the terrible loss of life."

"I am impressed with the fact that the world is growing better. There is more patriotism in America today than in the history of the country. The treason of Benedict Arnold could not be repeated today. Nor could a murderer preside over the sessions of the United States senate as in the days of Aaron Burr. Our citizens today are more loyal than ever before, and our continued progress and advancement is assured as long as we continue to fulfill our destiny as a great independent republic."

The committee in charge of the ladies' night meeting was: Charles Muggleton, chairman; Edw. Behrendt, J. L. Wilcox, H. M. Craig and J. T. Shear.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

A Free Demonstration of Scholl's Foot Comfort Service Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 3rd, 4th and 5th

Consult the Chicago Foot Specialist FREE

On these two days Free examination and advice will be given by an expert under the direction of Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, the famous foot specialist. He will also give demonstration of foot appliances necessary in the correction of foot troubles. This important event was arranged at great expense principally for you who have weak, tired, aching, calloused feet, for you who suffer from bunion pains and corns, or who have broken down arches, crooked toes, and hammer toes, for you who have tried fruitlessly to get relief. Not obliged to buy shoes here.

If you have flat, foot, weak feet or broken down arches, no matter if you are already wearing arch supports, have your feet scientifically examined by this specialist and let him advise you what to do. If you have been using bunion and corn remedies that furnish temporary relief without correcting the cause be sure to get this scientific advice.

If you are one of many thousands who have always had trouble in being properly fitted to shapely footgear come to our store. The difficulty will be solved easily and simply and perfect foot comfort will be given you.

WARNING: You may not realize it but those slight aches at the heels and ankles, those painful cramped toes, that in a serious derangement of the whole nervous system. Many people have mistaken these pains for rheumatism of the feet and have tried internal remedies to correct them when all they really needed was proper support of the feet arches.

Reason for This Demonstration

It has been our ever constant aim to make this the most progressive shoe store in town. For months we have thoroughly investigated the efficiency of the service rendered users of Dr. Scholl's Foot Specialties and wearers of his appliances. We have seen people who previously walked with great difficulty now able to stand the most rigorous exercising of the feet, enduring long walks and long standing without the slightest annoyance. We have found every one of Dr. Scholl's corrective devices anatomically correct and scientifically perfect. To give our patrons and friends the fullest benefit of the Scholl Foot Comfort Service we have arranged this demonstration and will henceforth conduct in our store an orthopedic department for continued service of this character. We are headquarters for Scholl's Foot Comfort Specialties and Appliances.

There's a Scholl Appliance for Every Foot Ailment or Deformity

COUNTRY SCHOOL MONTHLY EDITION IS MAILED TODAY

May Number of County Educational Publication Contains Important Announcements.

The Rock County Educational Bulletin, the monthly issue of the county school system and the county training school, was mailed to rural teachers and others of the county today.

Superintendent of County Schools O. D. Antisdel and Principal Frank J. Louth of the training school for teachers and members of the faculty of this institution are the editors.

Of especial interest is the announcement that the annual spelling contest in the schools will be held next Thursday, May 4. Lists of words are to be made out by Mr. Louth and Mr. Antisdel and sent sealed to the contest is ready to be opened only when the contest is ready to commence. Later the state contest will be held and the winner here will be eligible to go to the state contest during the time of the fair at Milwaukee in September.

The bulletin says that about seventy schools have already signified the desire to enter the school ground beautifying contest which is being promoted by the Janesville Commercial club.

The questions, "Cannot every school in the county get into this spirit of cleaning up the school grounds?" and "Will you not help members of school boards?" are asked.

The Janesville Commercial club is offering shrubs and plants to its surroundings more pretty and attractive.

The fourth quarterly conference for country teachers will be held two weeks from today, Saturday, May 13, at the training school. Dinner will be served to all making reservations before hand. The afternoon session will last from one to three o'clock.

Most of the plans for the training school commencement have been made. The date is Wednesday, June 21. The programs are being prepared and the graduates ready to issue their invitations. Supr. H. C. Buell is scheduled for the principal of the school and his subject is "The New Duties and Privileges of the Country Teacher."

The dates for the teachers' institute for this year have been announced for July 10 to 23. It is expected that there will be an enrollment of between seventy-five and one hundred at least.

MINNESOTA SPENDS TWO MILLION AND A HALF FOR THEIR PENAL INSTITUTIONS

St. Paul, Minn., April 28.—A report issued by the State Board of Control shows that 10,000 persons are now living in Minnesota institutions, charitable and correctional, that the property value of the institutions is more than $15,000,000 and that the state spends more than $2,500,000 a year to maintain them.

In point of valuation and appropriation the insane hospitals, of which there are five, lead the list. They are valued $3,363,026 and require a biennial appropriation of $2,367,550.

The institutions which occupy a total of 9,472 acres of land, house 10,375 patients, of whom 6,345 are males and 4,030 females, when the report was compiled.

Over 3,000 are on parole and still under supervision of the state.

The employees at the institution number 1,508 or one to every 5.7 inmates.

The first charitable work undertaken by the state was the care of the insane and the hospitals at Anoka, Hastings, Fergus Falls, Rochester and St. Peter now house about 5,660 patients. Of this number 63 percent are foreign born. Sixty percent are males, 40 percent females.

Furns are conducted in connection with some of the state institutions principally because of the large number of inmates from outdoor work. These farms have a combined land area of 4,671 acres, valued at $337,230.

Popular Information About Osteopathy

Edited by N. L. Sage, M. D. D. O., 421 Hayes Block

"Osteopathy" has done much for women, for it is relieving the troubles of women that Osteopathy has won many of its most signal triumphs. It has lessened very much of the sufferings of child-birth and its after effects.

Women who have tried it, cling to Osteopathy, and will always do so. Everywhere that Osteopathy has gone, women can testify that to them this system of adjustment has come as the greatest blessing offered by healing science. It places women in a physical condition to take advantage of her improved social and industrial position, and to do her best work for the world. It does more than any other system to make her the happy mother of vigorous children and to give strength equal to the demands made upon her by the complicated intellectual and social life of our times.

Osteopathy makes for happier homes by giving to the woman good health and cheerfulness.

Osteopathic treatment makes woman a capable of strengthening all her faculties thus developing better wives and mothers.—Dr. Margaret E. Schramm, Chicago, Ill.

Osteopathy helps women both directly and indirectly. Directly by curing the ills that the systems cannot reach. Indirectly by curing the ills of others whose burdens they have to bear. The world's burden is woman's burden and whatever lessens the burden of physical suffering for the world calls for a double share of gratitude from the daughters of mankind.—Dr. Jennette H. Bolles, Denver, Colorado.

CLEAN-UP TO START ON MONDAY MORNING

Organization for Three Day Campaign to Chase Dirt and Disease Out of Janesville.

On Monday cleanup work starts in Janesville, and will continue until Wednesday. Plans for the complete organization of the cleanup campaign were formulated by Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, city health officer, this morning to be executed during the three days. Superintendent of Streets, Streets Goodman has made arrangements for the hiring of the proper number of teams and who will be given certain districts to cover each day.

Every person is urged to take advantage of the city cleanup at the expense of the city. All that is necessary is to place all refuse, rubbish and debris on the curb by early Monday morning, where it can be easily reached by the teamsters. They will collect it and carry it away to be deposited at the city dump grounds. Asbes should be hauled away by the citizens at their own expense on one of the three days named. Back yards should be made spotless by Wednesday and there is an urgent request that the work be done as early as possible. Along with the cleanup comes the improvements to be made at each home, the planting of gardens, painting, improving of lawns, trees and otherwise beautifying the property.

COMMON AMERICAN BIRDS

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

BREWER'S BLACKBIRD

(Euphagus cyanocephalus)

Length, ten inches. Its glossy purplish head distinguishes it from other blackbirds that do not show in flight a trough-shaped tail.

Range: Breeds in the West, east to Texas, Kansas, and Minnesota, and north to southern Canada; winters over most of the United States breeding range, south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: Very numerous in the West and in fall gathers in immense flocks, especially about barnyards and corrals. During the cherry season in California Brewer's blackbird is much in the orchards. In one case they were seen to eat freely of cherries, but when a neighboring fruit raiser began to plow his orchard almost every blackbird in the vicinity was upon the newly opened ground and close to the plowman's heels in its eagerness to get the insects exposed by the plow. Caterpillars and pupae form the largest item of animal food (about 12 per cent). Many of these are cutworms, and cotton bollworms or corn earworms were found in ten stomachs and codling-moth pupae in 11. Beetles constitute over 11 per cent of the food. The vegetable food is practically contained in three items—grain, fruit, and weed seeds. Grain, mostly oats, amounts to 54 per cent; fruit, largely cherries, 4 per cent; and weed seeds, not quite 9 per cent. The grain is probably mostly wild, volunteer, or waste, so that the bird does most damage by eating fruit.

Divided Prayers.

It was just before Christmas and Tommy was praying for Santa Claus to bring him a long list of things he wanted. Finally mother said: "I am afraid you are asking for too much at one time." The next night he ended his prayer with the usual list, then added: "And please bring me a big dog and cat; I will pray for the harness tomorrow."

STRANGE LIGHT WAS SEEN IN HEAVENS

Electrical Phenomena That Resembled a Gigantic Searchlight Noticed By Sky Gazers.

An electrical phenomena akin to the northern lights, which cast a broad band of light over the sky stretching almost from horizon to horizon, east to west, attracted the attention of several hundred residents of the city between nine and eleven o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings.

The stream of light began a little to the north of west and ended a little south of east when first observed. It was several degrees wide and clear and distinct throughout the arc. A little before eleven o'clock it began to throw streamers obliquely to the southeast, some five or ten degrees in length. Gradually the eastern portion faded out, and shortly after eleven o'clock the light disappeared.

Astronomers all over the northwest are puzzled by the appearance of this streak of light.

The light was plainly visible in Janesville Thursday and Friday nights, and the Gazette received many calls asking for a solution of the interesting stranger in the heavens. Some thought the streak of light was caused by meteor; others thought it was a reflection of the northern lights.

Prof. George C. Calkins, director of the Washburn observatory, at the University of Wisconsin, and his assistant, Prof. A. S. Flint, Friday night made study of the puzzle. Prof. J. V. Kremen of Marquette University, Milwaukee, also made an observation Friday night.

Prof. Kremen expressed the opinion that the streak of light was a cloud formation, probably caused by warm air areas coming in contact with currents of cold air in the lake regions.

NATIONAL CHECK CLEARING SYSTEM FOR FEDERAL BANKS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, April 29.—The federal reserve board announced today it would put into effect June 15 its new plan for country wide check clearing and collection. Under the plan the actual cost of clearing and collection of checks will be assessed against member banks in proportion to their use of the system.

The whole plan is based on generally accepted principles under which clearing and collection plans have long been operated. A federal reserve bank will not debit a member bank's reserve account with items forwarded for collection until the remittance of the member bank in payment of such items shall have had time to reach the federal reserve bank.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Said ex-Governor Peck a few months ago: "When I was governor we formed a new county. It was arranged that the democratic and republican members of the legislature should appoint the officers that I was to fill by appointment. It was all right until they came to the office of sheriff. The man agreed upon ran a saloon and permitted gambling in his place and had rather a bad name; nothing dishonest, but just bad. So I sent for him. I understood you want to be sheriff," I suggested. He said he did. "Run a saloon?" I asked. "Yes," he said. "Permit gambling in it?" "Yes," he said. "Drink yourself?" He admitted he did. "Gamble a little?" He said he did. "Married?" I asked. He said he had a wife and three children. "Now, see here," I said. "I'll appoint you sheriff if you'll promise to sell your saloon, give up the business, quit gambling and drinking and give your salary to your wife, living on what you get for the saloon." He didn't make much spurge over it, but said quite that he would do it. Well, I appointed him.

Two years after that, in the next campaign, a man came down from northern Wisconsin and wanted to know what in — I had been doing up in that section. "There's a republican up there that's spending money in your campaign like a drunken sailor!" It was my sheriff.

"Time ran on and I'd never seen the man. Then I went out of politics and forgot all about him. But one day recently I heard a bellboy at the Pfister hotel passing a man. It was the same name as that of my sheriff. So I followed the boy and finally landed the man. My name's Peck," I told him. "George W. Peck." He jumped up and nearly shook my arm off. "How have you behaved yourself?" I asked him. He said he sold his saloon, quit gambling, stopped drinking, and did all that he promised me he'd do. Then he studied a profession, built a beautiful home, educated his children in the university, and now had a fine professional business and the dearest family of any man in Wisconsin. "Well, his story made me glad that I had been governor."

Ex-Governor Peck died the other day, well out beyond the border line of allotted time. This little story told by a Milwaukee correspondent, is a tribute to his memory, for he was a kind-hearted man and a blessing to his day and generation. The man referred to in the story, is still living. He stands well up toward the front in his profession, and enjoys the respect and confidence of all who know him.

This little incident in the life of Governor Peck suggests the thought that death does not end all. The thing we call influence, which all of us possess, to greater or less extent, belongs to the realm of immortality, and it lives on through generations yet unborn to bless or curse humanity.

dust trail" in a Billy Sunday meeting. The influence which turned the man about and headed him the other way was a God-given influence. The change in the man was so pronounced that it was recognized. The destiny of the home was also changed, and so the good influence continues to bear abundant fruit.

The thought which came to the governor, long after the incident was forgotten, was a recompense. The man who stood before him, clothed and in his right mind, was an object lesson which caused memory to hark back through the years to another picture, less inviting.

The knowledge that he had helped a brother man brought joy and gladness to the heart of the old veteran when he stood close to the border line, with the years of a lousy, active life behind him.

It is worth while to remember that rewards for good deeds are scattered all along the highway, and it is not necessary for us to wait for the prizes until we pass beyond the vale which separates the here and now from the hereafter. They are here in rich abundance if we have eyes to see.

Isn't the great reforms, which sweep over the land and clarify the atmosphere like the cyclone, but the silent influences, like the dew and gentle rain, which produce lasting results.

Many choice tributes have been paid to the memory of the mother, and her name has been prominent in song and story. Her influence is a lasting influence, because it is inspired by unselfish love. Her faith is sublime. It endures when all other confidence is destroyed, and when at last it is sacrificed, she continues to hope, and when hope is dead, her great love continues to live. Said to be like the love of God, only more tangible and easier to understand.

Love for humanity, in the abstract, is a more difficult proposition, and yet it is more universal today than at any time in history. More is being done to safeguard child life than ever before, and humanity is touching elbows more closely.

The spirit of the Master is abroad in the land, and we are coming to understand as never before, that service to our fellow men, is the highest order of service.

There is nothing ostentatious about this kind of service, and no loud profession. The spirit which prompts it is akin to the mother spirit, but it covers a wider range and recognizes a common brotherhood.

There are many philanthropists today who do not aspire to the title. They belong to no organization which has for its object the uplift of humanity, but they go about doing good in a quiet way.

There is room in the ranks for workers, and you and I are needed. No better crowning can come to any life than the memory of helpfulness which came to cheer the old governor when he stood close to the edge of time.

(Synopsis of preceding chapters: Earl J. Hunt, Harold Bittsbee, true to his motto, "Courage a Year," invades the wilds of Brazil with his trusty moving picture camera and a hundred and forty native assistants and guards to see that no harm befalls him. On July 2, in a night drizzle, his right leg sinks to the knee in a mud minx's hole, the aid of two loose again. On the evening of July 13, while bathing in gentle waters, he lay sleeping, a man-eating bat brushed against his face, and on August 4, a fleeing ring-tailed pole cat tripped him up in his flight.)

"My hair-breadth escapes from death were too numerous to mention," he is remarking as we, gentle readers, take our seats, "but just to suggest a few, on June 12, in a ravine tropical storm, I fell down a ravine, my feet deep, and if it had not been for long ropes and a few brave natives who happened to be there, I should not be here to tell the tale. Then on the night of July 13, while an unbelievably gale blew at the rate of 167 miles a minute, four man-eating Zipparian vultures attacked me as I slept, and it was only—

Dad is an old-fashioned sport; likes to eat in his shirt sleeves every meal, and he believes he should say just what he thinks. He is not well versed in Greek; Plain old Yankee does he speak; And his rules of etiquette. They have not been published yet. You can always hear him chew; Drinks out of his saucer, too. And he doesn't mind a bit. When you call him down for it. Takes old-fashioned remedy. He what ails him. Says that he can't see much in this "new thought."

Thought, of course, he ought. He's not very long on style. And he wears no fine silk tie. Interest in art to him is naught but a silly whim. He's more taken up with cooks with music or with books. Football is not in his line. But, I'll tell you, friends of mine, When I'm lookin' for a V, Dad looks mighty good to me.

Uncle Abner.
There is one good thing about being a prohibitionist. A prohibitionist is never disappointed in the outcome of the presidential election. The railroad buys a ham every year, and that is enough to supply the ham sandwiches along the line. Any ham you buy no lets his wife make a monkey of him and he never gets any.

A feller has got to have a lot of sand to go into the cement sidewalk business. A man may wear a gallon hat to church Sunday, but still take a widow's home away from her on Monday.

Kickin' on the steel car service is the oldest form of amusement in this country. When a man starts to goin' down hill there are plenty of friends ready to help him along. A feller who has got the gift of gab generally lands somewhere, even if it is only in jail.

Familiar Remark.
Our second child had red hair, and whenever we took him out someone would remark about it. Withington Greeted By Monstrous Demonstration At Madison Last Night—Outlines Plans.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, April 29.—A crowd of university of Wisconsin students, numbering three thousand strong, filled the armory gymnasium last evening at one of the largest mass meetings ever held in Madison, to greet Dr. Paul O. Withington, the new head football coach from Harvard. Football was ushered in last Monday, and the meeting last night repeated and united on the part of the varsity students, as has not been in evidence for some years back.

President C. R. Van Hise acted as chairman for the evening. The track star, was the first speaker. He mentioned the success of the Badgers at the relay carnival at Philadelphia last Wednesday. He was followed by assistant coach Doherty, who urged co-operation on the part of the students. Capt. Paul Meyers of next fall's eleven outlined the plans for the coming season, after which Withington addressed the gathering for thirty minutes, telling his reasons for coming west to coach Wisconsin.

Students left the gymnasium filled with enthusiasm such as has not been seen in some time. The plan has been started early in the fall, with more than 200 men in mingles and, with a dozen or more coaches. (Close to eighty football players attended the closing practice with Withington yesterday, the new coach and Doherty going back early this morning.)

COMPLETE DISARMAMENT IS CALLED FOR IN A BILL INTRODUCED IN NORWAY
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Christiania, Norway, April 29.—Complete disarmament for Norway is called for in a bill which has been introduced in parliament by the Socialist faction of that body. This measure asks the government to frame and pass as soon as possible a resolution or bill providing for the abandonment of the whole army and navy. It also asks that all treaties between Norway and other countries which might possibly be a hindrance to complete disarmament, be either altered or replaced by new treaties and that treaties providing for arbitration in all controversial questions be secured with all foreign nations.

This bill is in accordance with the program of the Norwegian Socialist party, which in the last election advocated disarmament. Irrespective of whether other nations would disarm or not. Since the Socialists control only one third of the Assembly the bill now pending will not be passed this session, but if they should get control of parliament at the next election, a bill of this nature undoubtedly would be passed and become a law.

Dr. Wiley Has Helped Make CASKA'S Reputation
Did He Recommend It For Rheumatism and Catarrh? See the Answer.

No, but Dr. Wiley put a stop to all medicines that contain injurious ingredients and all medicines that made false claims. Before the 1906 Pure Food Law CASKA was a small factor, but since then its success has been marvelous from the fact the others that could not comply with the law were tabooed.

See on last page what well known men say of CASKA—men who agree with the Pure Food commissioner are supposed to prosecute anyone that does not comply with the law. In North Dakota three years ago, over 400 medicines were turned down by the Pure Food commission. CASKA stood the test, page 14, page 14.

Why You Should Consider a Refrigerator a Vital Necessity
The state inspectors are doing a good work in endeavoring to see to it that the dealers protect the public from disease germs in food products.
This is the first necessary step toward eliminating disease, but what care are you taking of your food after it reaches your home? Do you immediately place it in a sanitary refrigerator where it will be safe from the attacks of flies and the disintegrating effect of heat? Or do you simply take the hundred and one chances which you do it you are not fortunate enough to own a refrigerator?
What is the use of employing official inspectors if you disregard the simple necessary care of your eatables when they reach your house?

Pyorrhea Now Curable

This gum disease is the reason for the bleeding of your mouth every time you use a tooth brush.

It's the cause for that oozing and bad taste from around your teeth.

Unless cured, this disease will loosen and destroy every tooth in your head.

THEATRE LICENSES WILL EXPIRE ON SUNDAY NIGHT

City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund announced this morning that all the theatre licenses will have to be taken out on or before the first of May. The license fee is ten dollars and there has been a discussion of raising the amount to fifty dollars.

MEMORIAL DAY IDEA LOST IF YOUNGSTERS DO NOT HAVE PARTS

Committee Will Feature Youngsters Despite Buell's Refusal to Urge Their Participation.

Belief that unless the school children of Janesville were incorporated into the observance of Memorial day, the ostensible purpose of the occasion, to instill in their young minds a love for country and appreciation and reverence for those few remaining gray-haired veterans, could be wholly lost, prompted the committee in charge of the arrangements last night at their meeting to reach the decision that it was an absolute necessity that the children should be secured for the occasion.

This came after Mrs. Sadie Carman, head of the committee charged with the securing of the school children to participate in the parade and exercises of the day, reported the result of a conference with Principal H. C. Buell of the city school system. In Superintendent Buell's opinion, Mrs. Carman reported the thought it inadvisable to attempt to have the children in the parade because they could be handled and for that reason he saw no reason in attempting to have the city school system participate in the parade. The committee in the procession. Discussion of the matter brought the unanimous approval of the importance of having the children present. Mrs. Carman this morning assured directors of the occasion that she would personally see that a representative delegation of children were in the parade. Mrs. Carman's plan, as she announced it today, is to have the youngsters form a gigantic living day in their march along. The idea immediately met with the individual approval of those in the committee.

The meeting last evening was given over mostly to consideration of reports of committees. The next meeting will be held two weeks from last night, May 13, at the city hall.

A. E. Matheson has consented to give the address of the afternoon. This will be made at the Myers theater immediately after the parade is ended.

WILL MAKE SEARCH FOR WALVIG SUNDAY

Rock County Jail Authorities to Aid in Hunt for Missing Beloit Man Tomorrow.

Sheriff A. O. Chamberlain, Deputy W. E. Wogan and other county authorities will aid in the search for Rudolph Walvig, to clear up the mystery at Beloit Sunday. A reward of one hundred dollars has been offered for the discovery of Walvig, dead or alive, by Mayor Adams of Beloit.

Either Sheriff Chamberlain or Turnkey W. E. Wogan will go to Beloit early Sunday morning to superintend the organization of the posse who will make a systematic search of the territory in and around Beloit.

Besides the searching of the woods and country district, parts of the river and other streams are to be dragged.

A clairvoyant was brought out from Chicago to Beloit by some person interested in the baffling case, who believed in the prowess of the spirit world people. After the clairvoyant came out of it, declared that the body of Walvig had been thrown into the river from a bridge. The seance expert, however, did not deem the bridge or name the person who committed the murder. Evidently the clairvoyant obtained in the seance will not convict any one of the crime, but the Beloit people were not satisfied until they tried it.

Archibald Fowler, suspect in the case, is in the county jail awaiting his preliminary hearing next week. District Attorney Dunwiddie declared that one of the witnesses had begun to "come across," and new developments are expected at the hearing.

Rink open Sunday P. M. and night.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Warren Taylor.

Lucetta Salmon, nee Warren, in Turrin, Lewis county, New York, March 28, 1826, and died at her home in Orfordville, Wis., April 29, 1916, aged ninety years and twenty-five days.

Which five years of age she moved with her parents to the state of Ohio, and on December 18, 1842, at York, Medina county, Ohio, she was married to Warren Taylor, Jr., of the same county.

They came to Wisconsin in 1845 and settled on land in Spring Valley township, where they lived until 1891, when they moved to Orfordville, where Mrs. Taylor has resided until her death last Thursday.

To Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were born nine children, eight of whom are still living: one daughter, Mary Ann, dying in 1859; Warren Taylor, Jr., the husband, died November 28, 1894.

Mrs. Taylor was converted when she was twelve years old, and her life ever since has been the highest of Christian character. She was one of the original charter members of the Orfordville M. E. church and was a devoted member of the Woman's Missionary society, and at the time of her death was the oldest living settler of this community.

Those of her children who survive her are: Eliza Taylor of Janesville; Milton Taylor of St. Paul, Minn.; Emmett Ward of Cameron, Wis.; William Taylor, Newton Taylor, Mrs. Lily Dicker, Miss Ida Taylor and Bert Taylor, all of Orfordville.

The funeral was conducted from the M. E. church by the pastor, assisted by Rev. Samuel Lugg of Whitewater, was one of the early pastors of the church.

August Muenchow.

The funeral of the late August Muenchow will be held Sunday afternoon at the home at 404 South Franklin street at 2 o'clock and half an hour later from St. Paul's Lutheran church, the Rev. E. L. Treu officiating. Interment will be made at Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Ira Gilbert.

Mrs. Ira Gilbert passed away this morning at the county hospital. She was seventy years of age. A sister resides at Beloit. The body will be laid to rest in the town of Newark cemetery near the graves of her parents.

Mrs. August Meyer has returned home after an extended visit in Fond du Lac, accompanied by her sons, Ron and Milo.

GRAIN STORAGE LAW NOT PHILIPP "JOKE"

Former Speaker of Wisconsin House Sings Political Thunder to Governor's Disadvantage.

Madison, Wis., April 29.—An example of the misleading statements which are being made by opponents of Governor Philipp, is the following written by Meritt Hull and published in his newspaper at Black River Falls: "One of the biggest 'jokers' ever put through a legislature was Chapter 209 of the laws of 1915. Under its provisions, grain in elevators, warehouses, malhouses and breweries is assessed on the basis of 12 1/2 cents to 25 cents per thousand bushels, while Mr. Farm-brother has to pay for the grain in his granary under the old direct tax system. Thus a farmer having 1,000 bushels of wheat on hand on May 1st would pay at the average rate of the state, $13.34. In many townships the tax would be even higher and in some perhaps double that figure. Elevators, etc., pay on their receipts for the year, and no matter how many million bushels of wheat they have on hand May 1st, it would only pay the 25 cents per thousand bushels. Not many farmers carry large amounts of grain over, but in the aggregate for the state they have millions of bushels, and in the aggregate of taxation they pay accordingly.

As a matter of fact Mr. Hull, as a former speaker of the assembly and a constant attendant upon the sessions of the 1915 legislature should have known the facts about the chapter 209 of the laws of 1915. If he did know them it is hardly to be believed that he would have deliberately misled his readers, many of whom are farmers. No doubt he will correct his statement when he knows the facts, but an old adage recently quoted by Governor Philipp is to the effect that truth never overtakes a falsehood. The facts are that the bill which became Chapter 209 of the Laws of 1915 was introduced by Assemblyman Ray J. Nye of Superior and its provisions interest those cities of the state which have large grain elevators, the lake shore cities in particular more than any others. The city of Superior for many years has been hampered by unfair competition from Duluth, in Minnesota a law similar to the one passed in 1915 has been in vogue, the tax in grain in warehouses being 25 cents per thousand bushels on all grain passing through the warehouses each year. Public naturally was selected as a transfer point for grain coming from the west, there being no objection to the reasonable tax of 25 cents per thousand bushels on grain in transit but naturally no desire on the part of the shippers to pay sixty times that on grain which happened to be in warehouses in Superior on May 1st waiting for a lake or transportation to continue its journey to the eastern market. The new law merely places Superior and other similar lake-front cities on an equal basis with Duluth and other Minnesota grain centers.

The statement that the farmers of Wisconsin pay taxes at the rate as assessed on other property on millions of bushels of grain each year is untrue according to an investigation in the tax commission office in the state capitol. When an investigation was made and figures asked showing the amount of taxes paid by farmers on grain the inquiry was met by the statement that they paid no taxes on grain.

"The statement that farmers paid taxes on millions of bushels of grain each year is misleading and should not have been made," said the employee of the Tax Commission who answered the inquiry.

Several farmers who were asked about their experience said that they never had paid taxes on any grain in their life.

Section 1040 Chapter 48 of the Wisconsin statute which describes personal property to be assessed refers to such property found upon a farm as farm implements, cordwood, live stock and farm products, excepting grain in warehouse.

Section 1050, Chapter 48 of the Wisconsin statutes describes farm property which is to be listed by the assessor in making up their rolls, although it does mention leaf tobacco and other farm products.

Farmers of the state, of course, cannot be deceived by the statement that they have been paying taxes on millions of bushels of grain each year but it seems to be necessary, in view of the misleading statement by Mr. Hull to explain the situation that it may understand it.

William Cushing of this city was taken into custody by the police here this afternoon and detained until the arrival of an officer from Milwaukee. According to the authorities Cushing is wanted in Milwaukee for passing a check without having funds in the bank. The Milwaukee officer is expected at four o'clock to serve the warrant.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

"No," she replied, "I can do it and I'm going to. I know that train can be saved and I'm going to save it."

"It's all right to try anything you'd have any chance of succeeding in, but you'd only be going to your death, I tell you," he persisted.

Unwilling to waste more time, Helen tried to open the car door to get out. Seagrue caught her arm: "You shan't go!" he declared.

"I will go," she cried.

Before he could restrain her, she jumped out of the car and running swiftly to the edge of the bridge caught hold of it. The next moment the local dashed through below and Helen jumped to the top of the box car underfoot.

Helen Dropped to the Top of the Local.

Scrambling up from the deck she ran to the end, hurried down the side ladder and getting between the two cars, she cut off the air and pulled the pin.

The train torn abruptly in two, separated, the head end jerking on toward the junction crossing, just ahead, while the hind end slowed down. Number Eight had already whistled for the junction and as the front end of the parted local dashed over the frogs, the heavy passenger train swept swiftly across almost at right angles to it. Fast as it went, its observation car barely cleared the hind end of the local as this followed over the crossing in pursuit of its severed head.

The local engineer, looking back, saw what had happened and applied the air. As he slowed down, the passengers now awoke to what had happened, turned out of the coaches and ran forward. Helen fell fainting from the side ladder; she lay unconscious on the ground as the passengers crowded up.

Seagrue, who had followed to the junction in his car, ran toward Helen, but as he approached, an arm shot out before him as a barrier. George Storm whirled him half way around and himself kneeling, lifted Helen from the ground.

Dazed by her fall and opening her eyes slowly on her surroundings, Helen—while Storm anxiously asked if she was hurt and reproached her for leaving him—gradually pulled her senses together.

"Take me away, George," she murmured faintly. "Who are all these people? What has happened?"

At Storm's elbow, while he tenderly cared for and redoubled his efforts to revive Helen, stood Spike, like a watchdog. He kept the circle of passengers from crowding in and when Seagrue again attempted to interfere, Spike escorted him over to his machine and invited him in such unmistakable terms to continue his journey that Seagrue thought best not to rouse Spike's anger further.

Returning hurriedly to the focus of interest about Helen, Spike continued to push the passengers back. When Helen spoke to Storm again, as she soon did, she was able to rise to her feet and those passengers who refused to leave the young couple to themselves were hustled away by Spike to give privacy to the little scene being enacted between Helen and Storm in the foreground.

"I am desperately sorry, Helen, I forgot myself this morning," George was saying to his offended sweetheart. "I know I ought not to have given way, but when that fellow spoke to me as he did—after all his meanness—I felt as if nothing but a good beating would do him justice. I forgot you in it, Helen—that's all. Can you forgive me?"

She looked up into his eyes. Whether he found forgiveness there or not, he could detect nothing of anger: "Take me home, George," she said sorrowfully. "I'm awfully bruised up."

"You've nothing on me at that," laughed Storm. He slipped his hand into the pocket of his waistcoat and drew out her ring. "Before we start, Helen, I'd better put this back where it belongs." Taking her unresisting finger into his own, he slipped the engagement ring over it again.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

Edith Storey.

Edith Storey, the popular star, was one of the "early birds" of her profession, having started her career on the stage at the age of ten as an extra with Miss Eleanor Robson in "Audrey." Her dramatic ability was so marked that she was immediately engaged to play a child's part in "The Little Princess" and the next season she played one of the children in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Little Miss Storey remained with this attraction three seasons. Her next engagement was with "Hebe" of Sunnyside Farm, in which she played a sixteen-year-old girl. This completed her actual stage career and for the past four or five years she has been seen in screen productions. She appears in a picture feature and plays opposite Antonio Moreno the most of the time. Miss Storey was born in 1892.

SEEKING SELVES AS OTHERS SEE THEM

For the first time in the history of the glided 400, New York's society folk are seeing themselves as others see them: on the movie screen. More than five hundred young people, members of Gotham's inner circles of polite society took part in the filming of "The Flame of Kapur," a drama written for the occasion by Miss Grace R. Henry, a talented member of the Junior League, which is composed of 800 New York debutantes.

The league was organized fifteen years ago by Miss Mary Harriman (now Mrs. C. C. Rumsey), daughter of the late E. Harriman. Hitherto its dramatic efforts were confined to the speaking stage, but this year it decided to stage a photoplay, and so skillfully has this been done that $20,000 has already been netted for charity.

Clara Kimball Young has made a great success in pictures. She has received a proposal of marriage. It reads: "I'm a good Baptist, but even if you are an actress I am willing to marry you. I get twenty-two dollars a week and see by the papers that you get $2,000. We could live very comfortably on $2,022. If interested, write me and I'll send picture."

Shakespearean plays have not generally been considered suitable for the movies. For one thing costume plays are seldom popular with movie actresses. Nevertheless Francis X. Bushman is going to do Romeo and Beverly Bayne will impersonate Juliet in a production of "Romeo and Juliet."

Do you reckon you could jump across a forty-seven foot ravine in an automobile? You probably reckon not. This, however, is the feat that Thomas Chatterton and Juanita Hanson are said to have performed in one of the episodes of a picture they were taking.

Margery Dale, youngest daughter of Alan Dale, well known as a writer on subjects connected with the stage, makes her debut as a movie actress with Mme. Petrova in "The Scarlet Woman."

"Twilight Sleep" Pictures Coming to the Myers Theatre—For Women Only.

The attraction at the Myers theatre for three days, beginning with a matinee for women only Thursday, May 4, will be an intensely interesting motion picture visualization of "Twilight Sleep," or Dammerschlaf, the Freiberg method of inducing painless childbirth, and the beautiful babies born as a result of the application of the "Twilight Sleep" method, as it is known among the medical fraternity. The picture is fostered by the Motherhood Educational society, under whose auspices they will be shown to women only at the Myers theatre. No one under sixteen years of age will be admitted, in the absence of some special arrangement with the management. Depicting, as they do, one of the oldest and best-known methods of inducing painless parturition, they invariably make a strong appeal to every woman, especially the one who demands enlightenment while being entertained. In Milwaukee very recent more than fifteen thousand women saw the films, listened to the accompanying lecture delivered by a motherly woman, and enthusiastically approved both as being educational and entertaining in the extreme. "Twilight Sleep" films serve to refute the generally accepted theory that mothers are doomed to physical bankruptcy at forty-five or fifty years of age, and emphasize the fact that motherhood, which is admittedly woman's greatest joy, need not necessarily be accompanied by such brutal fatigue as to leave the mother mentally nervous and physically the victim of shock.

During the engagement at the Myers theatre, Mrs. L. Y. Henry, long engaged with gynecological work, will accompany the pictures with a lecture calculated to make clear and plain every phase of the subject treated. In an intimate way Mrs. Henry will explain each and every seemingly minor detail revealed by the pictures, which were filmed during a clinic in a private sanitarium conducted by Dr. Kurt E. Schloosberg, the eminent Freiberg specialist. She will not only outline the history of the various attempts to find a reliable scientific method of rendering childbirth less irksome, but she will also define the fundamental differences between the several methods in general use today, and explain their after effects, shortcomings and advantages. Two matinees will be given, at 2:15 and 3:30, with one exhibition in the evening at 8 o'clock.

AT BEVERLY THEATRE.

Triangle Play Presents Two Popular Stars.

Bessie Barriscale, a favorite of the film fans, and Bruce McRae, a matinee idol, are the co-stars in the new Triangle play, "The Green Swamp," at the Beverly tonight. Miss Barriscale made her first essay in moving pictures as Juanita in "The Rose of the Desert." This led to her engagement under a long time contract by Thomas H. Ince. Among her successes in this new field of art are "The Devil," "The Cup of Life," "The Reward," "The Martin and "The Golden Claw." Miss Barriscale is an attractive blond with fine brown eyes.

Bruce McRae, who is in great demand on the speaking stage, chooses the motion picture to display his dramatic powers, is a Londoner by birth, but a New Yorker by stage training. He is something of a globe trotter, having lived in England, America, New Zealand and Australia. He is a nephew of Sir Charles Wyndham, the famous English actor-manager. His first appearance was with Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson in Sardou's "Thermidor." He was a favorite leading man with Ethel Barrymore, Julia Marlowe, Mrs. Pike and Blanche Bates. Some of his notable successes in pictures are "The Ring and the Man" and "Via Wireless."

Lower Grade School Children Are Entertained With Pictures.

It was a marvelous sight to see the six hundred little tots of the lower grades of the Janesville schools massed before the Beverly theatre this morning and then to see them march into the playhouse with their teachers and find their places.

The management invited them to come as their guests and entertained them with the pipe organ orchestra and motion pictures which the kiddies enjoyed. A fairy tale in pictures was shown together with a comic cartoon and a beautiful travelogue through Colorado. The older grades will be invited at a later date.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Generosity Is Mother's Middle Name

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The City of Numbered Days

By FRANCIS LYNDIE

Illustrations by C. D. Rhodes

"There is No Such Thing as Good News in This God-Forsaken Valley, Castner."

in your time, doesn't it?"

"No more in mine than in yours," was the quick retort.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" said the engineer pointedly, catching step with the long-legged stride of the athletic young shepherd of souls.

"Not if you claim kinship with Cain, who was the originator of that very badly outworn query," came the answer shotlike. Then: "What has come over you lately, Brouillard? You are a friend of the Massingales; I've had good proof of that. Why don't you care?"

"Great heavens, Castner, I do care!

But if you had a cut finger you wouldn't go to a man in hell to get it tied up, would you?"

"You mean that I have brought my cut finger to you?"

"Yes, I mean that, and the rest of it, too. I'm no fit company for a decent man today, Castner. You'd better edge off and leave me alone."

Castner did not take the blunt intervention. For the little distance intervening between the power company's new offices and the Niquoia building

he tramped beside the young engineer in silence. But at the entrance to the Niquoia he would have gone his way if

Brouillard had not said abruptly:

"I gave you fair warning; I'm not looking for a chance to play the Good Samaritan to anybody—not even to

Stephen Massingale, much less Van

Bruce Cortwright. The reason is because I have a pretty decent backlog of my own to carry. Come up to my rooms if you can spare a few minutes.

I want to talk to a man who hasn't parted with his soul for a money equivalent—if there is such a man left in this bottomless pit of a town."

Castner accepted the implied challenge soberly, and together they ascended to Brouillard's offices. Once behind the closed door, Brouillard struck out viciously.

"You fellows claim to hold the keys to the conscience shop; suppose you open up and dole out a little of the precious commodity to me, Castner. Is it ever justifiable to do evil that good may come?"

"No." There was no hesitation in the denial.

Brouillard's laugh was harshly derivative.

"I thought you'd say that. No qualifications asked for, no judicial weighing of the pros and cons—the evil of the evil, or the goodness of the good—just a plain, bigoted 'No.'"

The young missionary left his chair and began to walk back and forth on his side of the office desk.

"You want counsel and you are not willing to buy it with the coin of confidence," he said at length, adding:

"It is just as well, perhaps. I doubt very much if I am the person to give it to you."

"Why do you doubt it? Isn't it a part of your job?"

"Not always. I am not your conscience keeper, Brouillard. Don't misunderstand me. I may have lived a year longer than you have, but you have lived more—a great deal more.

That fact might be set aside, but there is another: In the life of every man

there is some one person who knows who understands, whose word for that man is the one only fitting word of inspiration. That is what I mean when I say that I am not your conscience keeper. Do I make it clear?"

"Granting your premises—yes. Go on."

"I will. We'll paste that leaf down and turn another. Though I can't counsel you, I can still be your faithful accuser. You have committed a great sin, Brouillard; and you are still committing it. If you haven't been the leader in the mad scramble for riches here in this abandoned city, you have been only a step behind the leaders. And you were the one man who should have been like Caesar's wife, the one whose example counted for most."

Brouillard got up and thrust out his hand across the desk.

"You are a man, Castner—and that is better than being a priest," he asserted soberly. "I'll take back all the spiteful things I've been saying. I'm down under the hoofs of the horses, and it's only human nature to want to pull somebody else down. You are one of the few men in Mirapolis whose presence has been a blessing instead of a curse—who hasn't had a purely selfish greed to satisfy."

Again Castner shook his head. "There hasn't been much that I could do. Brouillard, it is simply dreadful—the hard, reckless, half-demoniac spirit of this place! There is nothing to appeal to; there is no room or time for anything but the mad money chase or the still madder dissipation in which the poor wretches seek to forget. I can only try here and there to drag some poor soul out of the fire at the last moment, and it makes me sick—sick at heart!"

"You mustn't look at it that way," said Brouillard, suddenly turning comforter. "You have been doing good work and a lot of it—more than any three ordinary men could stand up under. I haven't got beyond seeing and appreciating, Castner; truly I have not. And I'll say this: 'If I had only half your courage, but it's no use, I'm in too deep. I can't see any farther ahead than a man born blind. There is one end for which I have been striving from the very first, and it is still unattained. I'm past help now. I have reached a point at which I'd pull the whole world down in ruins to see that end accomplished."

The young missionary took another turn up and down the room and then came back to the desk for his hat. At the leave-taking he said the only helpful word he could think of.

"Go to your confessor, Brouillard—your real confessor—and go all the more readily if that one happens to be a good woman—whom you love and trust. They often see more clearly than we do—the good women. Try it; and let me help where a man can help."

For a long hour after Castner went away Brouillard sat at his desk, fighting as those fight who see the cause lost, and who know they only make the ruin more complete by struggling on.

Cortwright's guess had found its mark. He was loaded to break with "front feet" and options and "corners." In the least speculative period he had bought and mortgaged and bought again, plunging recklessly with the sole object of wringing another hundred thousand out of drying sponge against the time when David Massingale should need it. At first the undertaking seemed easily possible. But with the drying of the speculative sponge it became increasingly difficult. More and more he had been compelled to buy and hold, until now the bare attempt to unload would have started the panic which was only waiting for some hedging seller to fire the train.

The sweat stood out in great drops on his forehead when he finally drew a pad of telegraph blanks under his hand and began to write a message. Painstakingly he composed it, referring often to the notes in his field-book, and printing the words neatly in his accurate, clearly-defined handwriting.

When it was finished he translated it laboriously into the department code. But after the copy was made and signed he did not ring at once for a messenger. Instead, he put the two, the original and the cipher, under a paper weight and sat glooming at them searching blindly for some alternative to the final act of treachery which would be consummated in the sending of the wire.

Since, by reason of Cortwright's tamperings with the smelter people and the railroad, the "Little Susan" had become a locked treasure vault, the engineer, acting upon his own initiative, had tried the law. As soon as he had ascertained that David Massingale had been given sixty days longer to live, solely because the buccaners chose to take his mine rather than his money, Brouillard had submitted the facts in the case to a trusted lawyer friend in the East.

Dinner Stories

"Woddye know about that?" exclaimed the vaudevillian. "That guy on the stage is imitating my imitation of Eddie Foy."

"But that's Eddie Foy himself," objected his neighbor. "He's got no business stealin' my stuff."

A certain professor is unusually courteous, both in and out of the classroom. One day he made a bonfire in his back garden. The flames, creeping rapidly through the dry stubble, frightened him, and he believed his house was in imminent danger. So he ran wildly down the street, crying at the top of his voice:

"Help! Fire!! Fire!! Help!!"

And then, as if thinking himself too abrupt and urgent, he politely added, so his neighbors say:

"That is, all those who can conveniently do so."

"Where have you been, Mary Ann?"

"I've been to the girls' improvement class, ma'am," was the maid's reply.

"Well, and what did the minister say to you? Did you tell him who your mistress was?"

"Please, ma'am, he said I wasn't to give notice, as I intended, but that I was to consider you as my burden—and bear it."

Two oysters were in a big pot full of milk, getting ready for stew. Said one oyster to the other:

"Where are we?"

"At a church supper," was the reply.

Whereupon the little oyster said: "What on earth do they want of both of us?"

"Your love," he said, "would give me the strength to lift mountains."

CHAPTER XIX The Man on the Bank

Brouillard, walking out of Mr. Cortwright's new offices with his thoughts afar, wondered if it were by pure coincidence that he found Castner apparently waiting for him on the sidewalk. "Once more you are just the man I have been wanting to see," the young missionary began, promptly making use of the chance meeting. "May I break in with a bit of bad news?"

"There is no such thing as good news in this God-forsaken valley, Castner. What's your grief?"

"There is trouble threatening for the Cortwrights. Stephen Massingale is out and about again, and I was told this morning that he was filling himself up with bad whiskey and looking for the man who shot him."

Brouillard nodded unsympathetically.

"You will find that there is always likely to be a second chapter in a book of that sort—if the first one isn't conclusive."

"But there mustn't be this time," Castner insisted, warmly. "We must stop it; it is our business to stop it."

CHAPTER SEVEN.

Lionel Brandt, of the King's Guard.

"In fact, the Frenchman went on, 'I am sure that Leo Sing Wah was not playing a lone hand.'"

"Then do you think that the Chink is out of it now altogether?" Ned asked, "and that from now on we'll have to chase one or more of his confederates?"

"I don't know about that," Follet replied, "but one thing is sure, ze 'Chink,' as you call him, is out of it as long as he stays in jail. And zat will probably be a long time, 'The next thing to do is to get track of the one who has it—ze packet in his hands now,' Kit remarked.

"Oh, I'm not so sure about zat," said the Frenchman. "In fact, I think zat within half an hour at the most we will know what person we will have to pursue to obtain ze packet."

Both boys stood up at the strutting words. "What's that?" Ned cried.

"I told you, did I not?" Follet continued, "that there were three persons beside myself seeking to recover ze packet. One of zem was close after me yesterday, and I believe it was he who procured the capture of ze Chinaman. He wrote me a letter this morning, getting my address from ze police department, and told me all zis. He said zat he thought zat a young Englishman was the next one to have ze packet. He said that perhaps ze was a regular agent across Canada and ze United States to New York, and zat ze young man was ze first link, and zat ze big zis young Englishman was ze second link. After heem, we do not know who comes, but we will find out, and what we have to do is to find the weakest link and to break it. Ze whole chain is useless."

"He man who told me zis, or rather, wrote it to me, I expect at zis moment, at any moment, he will be at ze door. He, like me, is in ze diplomatic service of Canada, but it is only temporary. He is a regular member of ze King's Guard at zis time."

"Then, is this man to work separately or with us?" asked Kit.

"He is to work with us," answered Follet. "It is you and heem who must recover ze packet down, for me—I can not. I am wounded and must stay here."

"Have no fears, Follet, cried Ned forry, 'We'll get your old packet for you.'"

"I suppose so, I suppose so," the Frenchman muttered, "but I wish only zat I could go along." But zen, I must be patient. Perhaps I may get well in time to do something."

At that moment there came a knock at the door.

"Come in," called Follet.

The door opened and a young, handsome man stepped into the room. He was nearly six feet tall and had black hair and eyes.

"Gentlemen," said Follet, "allow me to introduce you to Mr. Lionel Brandt, of the King's Guard, and Mr. Kit Craig, who are helping me in the chase for ze packet."

Lionel Brandt stepped forward and shook hands cordially with the two boys. "Are they to be my aids instead of yourself?" he asked.

"Yes," Follet replied. "They will go with you and help you at every opportunity. I can swear zat ze will prove satisfactory. I sent ze last night after Leo Sing Wah, and ze were back zis morning with full information as to his whereabouts. But what have you to report? What of ze young Englishman who is ze next link in ze chain?"

"At the present time I believe that he is on a train bound for Chicago," answered the young diplomat.

"I found him at Milan, but did not know him then. He must have had the packet on him at the time. When I did get information that he was that early this morning, at about 2 o'clock, I believe, he boarded a through train for Chicago. I did not attempt to follow him, and came down here as soon as possible."

"You have done well," said Follet. "You ought to be able to get track of zis Englishman in Chicago. Just keep track of the New York train and nab him when he tries to board one."

"Yes," said Lionel Brandt, "I think that now we have the packet as good as recovered."

"There is a train for Chicago in forty-five minutes," announced Follet. "There is nothing to do here. I advise zat the three of you ride on. The quicker you get to Chicago the better. Good and good luck!"

"I think that is the best plan," said Kit.

"And I also agree," said Brandt. "Farewell."

CHAPTER EIGHT.

The Forming of the Net.

As they walked to the train Kit looked over their new companions. The man looked to be about thirty-five years old, and was decidedly handsome. He had, apparently, a strong personality, but there was something sinister about his appearance, which Kit could not account for. There was some vague feeling that somewhere before, long ago, he had seen the fellow. Where or when he did not know, but there was that indefinable feeling, which he could not shake off.

Ned's thoughts concerning Lionel Brandt were different. He experienced nothing of what Kit did. To him the fellow was simply a pleasant companion, and he looked forward to the days when they would be together with a certain degree of pleasure.

Seated in the Chicago train at last, Lionel Brandt spoke.

"What plan, he asked, 'do you think we had better adopt?'

"I haven't the slightest idea," said Kit. "Do we have to have a plan?"

"I believe it would be best," Brandt smiled. "We can't go after that Englishman haphazardly, you know. We'll have to decide upon a plan of action before we reach Chicago. Each of us must have one duty to perform, and everyone does his, and does it well, there can be but one outcome to the search."

"Tell us all about it," suggested Ned. "We don't know anything."

Brandt smiled again at these words. "All right," he said. "When we get into Chicago each must have a special thing to do. We must work together, but we must be able to work with little consultation among ourselves. To my knowledge there will be another man in Chicago ready to help the Englishman, who, by the way, is called Henry Blunt, and if one should be assigned the special task of shadowing him, and another the task of shadowing the other person, you can easily see how much better things would go along. There would be no chance for anything to get by us. We would form a net, with three separate strands, and when one strand breaks there will be two left. We should be practically invincible. "That would be a great thing all right," said Kit. "I don't see why it wouldn't work. To go at a thing systematically is very much better than to try to do it haphazardly."

"Then," said Brandt, "I will assign to Kit the duty of shadowing Mr. Henry Blunt. The man I spoke of, who is already in Chicago, will be shadowed by Ned, and as for myself, I think I can find enough to do."

"You ought to have a definite thing to do as well as the rest of us," Ned remarked with just a little feeling, for he did not exactly approve of Brandt's authoritative manner. Of course, reflection told him that nothing could be a success without a leader, but just the same, the man's manner was a little overbearing.

"Why?" Brandt laughed. "Don't you think I am capable of finding something to do after we get there?"

"Don't you think we are?" Ned flashed.

"Come now," said Kit, half laughing, half serious, "what's the use of hatching a row? Can't you see, Ned, that there has got to be a free lance in this thing, because even if we are bound to happen contrary to our expectations? We have a duty assigned which any happening cannot change, but there will be others, and someone must be free to meet them. I think Mr. Brandt's plan is excellent."

"I guess it is," Ned admitted.

"Say!" Kit gasped, all of a sudden. "Look there!"

"What's the matter?" cried Ned and Lionel Brandt together.

"That's the car, there, in the last seat," Kit pointed. "Can't you see? It's Leo Sing Wah!"

Business Men Favor Prohibition.

We have before us, from C. C. Colt of Portland, Oregon, Mr. Colt is president of the Chamber of Commerce of that city, an organization of 4500 members, and he is also at the head of one of the largest meat packing plants west of Kansas City. His letter is of interest and value because of his intimate association with the business affairs of a large city. It is in part as follows:

"Oregon has experienced a little over one month in the dry column, and, contrary to general expectations, the world has not gone to an end, neither have many people gone out of business, and those who have are a help rather than a detriment to the general community. And, upon making inquiries, that many of the retail stores report better cash business and collections are improved, due, no doubt, to a large amount of money being distributed through legitimate channels that heretofore was wasted in saloons."

Economically, there is not much question in my mind but what Prohibition is a benefit to the community. The large majority of the community, arrests for disorderly conduct and drunkenness have fallen to almost nothing, and street accidents caused by reckless automobile drivers and similar things, which were almost hourly occurrences, have practically disappeared."

"As an employer of a large number of men I have no hesitancy in stating that the efficiency of the workmen in improved; that our gangs are steadier, and that we, for one, are glad that prohibition has arrived. What temporary ill effect there may be I believe will be more than offset by the ultimate benefits which will come, and I have already made their appearance."

RUNS OVER TWO CHILDREN AND FINDS THEM UNHURT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Orfordville, Wisconsin, April 28.—What might have been a serious and fatal accident was miraculously averted Thursday afternoon when Christ Reid was passing the school house with his automobile. While driving his car at a very moderate rate of speed he discovered two little girls directly in the path of the car and with in two or three feet of it he stopped the car after it had gone not more than its length, but not until it had struck the children and passed over them. Imagine his delight and surprise upon alighting to find that neither of the children were in the least hurt, but that the radiator had pushed them to the ground where they had lain between the wheels, none of which had touched them.

The Ladies Aid society of the M. E. church met with Mrs. Wesley Jones on Friday afternoon. After the work was done a meeting of the church was held. There was a good attendance.

HERE AND THERE IN THE ATHLETIC WORLD

Frank Gotch, Champion Wrestler, Re-enters Game—Jess Willard Joins the Circus Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
San Francisco, April 29.—Frank Gotch is scheduled to re-enter the wrestling game today, meeting all comers. The man who stays with him 15 minutes is to get $100, or $250 if he stays 30 minutes.

Cross Country Run.
St. Louis, April 29.—A score of runners from all sections of the middle west met today at the annual cross country run of the Missouri Athletic association. The distance is six and one-half miles through Forest Park. A gold medal emblematic of the A. A. U. championship goes to the winner.

Chicago, April 29.—The amateur baseball craze struck Chicago today with the meeting here of the executive body of the national amateur organization, the National Baseball federation. "Jake Stahl," ex-manager of the Boston Red Sox and head of a local bank, headed a committee which enforces the amateur rules. Chicago is making a bid for the staging of the national amateur championship games here this fall. Fifteen local leagues have applied for plaques in the championship series.

Fresno, Cal., April 29.—Some of the country's foremost automobile drivers participated this afternoon in the first annual Raisin Classic road race run over a 300 mile course here. A huge trophy said to be worth $5,000 and prizes aggregating $6,500 were the magnets attracting the speed kings.

MORRIS MILLER

A story comes from Los Angeles that Orville Overall plans with Mordecai Brown to buy a Cubs league franchise—if they can find one for sale. Overall has resigned his position as a salesman for the Majestic brewery in Los Angeles and taken the management of his father's ranch, his father being in bad health and unable to look after the property.

Ohio boasts of one of the two women in the entire United States that train and race horses. Miss Vesta Stibbs is her name and Lebanon her home. Miss Stibbs has trained a number of horses in the last five years and the trotter, The Orphan Boy, 2:22 1/4, she has raced in big fields. And getting her share of the money, Miss Stibbs conducts a trotting horse farm of her own and has made money.

Coach Billy Sullivan of the Detroit Americans has come forward with his suggestion for the placing of umpires in the world series baseball games. Sullivan says there is no real need for umpires in the outfield. His plan would have these men stationed in the infield, so that each base could be watched by an umpire. The arbitrators stationed at first and third base could accurately give decisions on drives striking close to the foul line, he said.

While no one can venture to predict when Hans Wagner will play his last ball game, it is a pretty good bet that Sam Langford will retire after the coming season. Langford's contract will expire at the end of the 1916 campaign and he will not be likely to accept a cut or take the management of some minor league club.

"The bigger they are the harder they fall," is how Sam Langford views the present situation. The Boston Tar Baby has not yet lost a game, a majority of times his opponents have had a big weight advantage over Langford. Sam boxed Jack Johnson in Chicago years ago, and, although he didn't get the job, he has always claimed he hung it on Jack's eye. Sam weighs 247 and Jack about 200 for the bout. Sam McVea, whom Langford meets in Akron May 2, will outweigh the Tar Baby by about thirty-five pounds, but a little thing like that never bothers Langford.

Joe Wright, now expert from Toronto, Canada, is the athletic idol at the University of Pennsylvania. Wright won his way into the hearts of the Quakers when he defeated Yale in a spectacular race on the Schuylkill course. Penn was in a nervous state over the situation until last week. Wright faced severe criticism of having overrated his crew by a month's hard work, and on every side it was predicted that red and blue would be smothered beneath a heavy white.

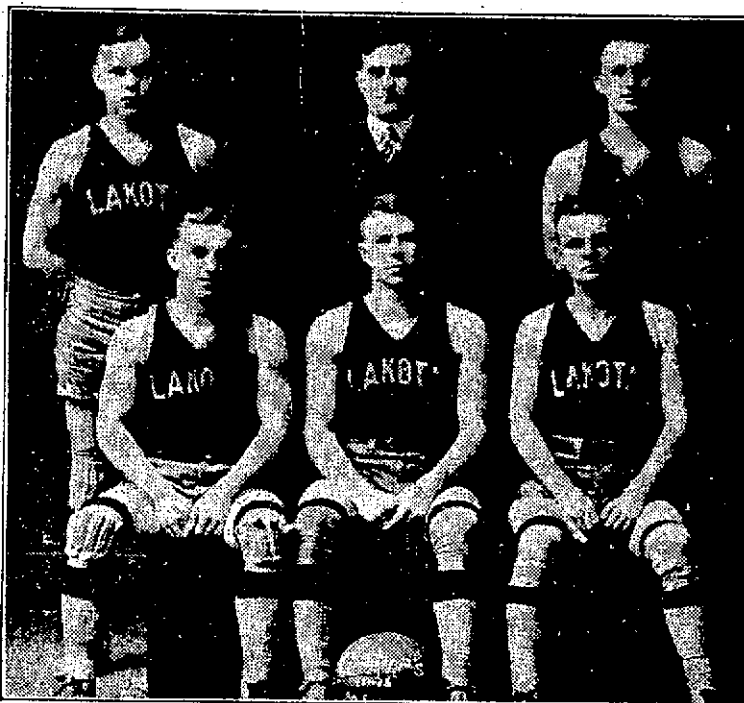

There are hundreds—yet, thousands—if able bodied men in this great and glorious land of ours who would consider the ambition of a soldier achieved if they could break 90 per cent of the clay targets shot at in a season's campaign—yet this seeming difficult task is performed year in and year out by a man in an armed trapshoot. This man is George W. Maxwell, whose place of abode is Hastings, Neb. Hastings is proud of Maxwell as indeed it should be. He is not only able to break 90 per cent about the best shot in America at doubles; in fact, he won the championship at this style of shooting in 1914.

The Columbia Athletic club of St. Louis is building a $20,000 athletic field with a quarter-mile cinder track. A swimming pool will be built after the track is completed. The athletic field will be the second largest in St. Louis, the largest being that of Washington university. The new field will contain a residence, a baseball field, a football field, and several tennis courts. The club will hold an outdoor meet and marathon contest this summer.

Fielder Jones' success as a manager seems to have come through his amazing skill in handling his pitchers. Through some power that is foreign to other team leaders, Jones knows just when to work a moundwarmer and when to leave him on the bench. Frequently he yanks hurlers when there seems to be no occasion for it. At other times he permits his fingers to remain in the box when it seems like baseball suicide. Yet, in almost every instance, the judgment of Jones has been sustained by later developments.

Johnnie Tobin, who plays right field for the Browns, hails from the Peds, but he was not a contract jumper, never having played professional ball until he joined the St. Louis outlaws.

The Lakota Cardinals, Two Time Basketball Champions in the West

Standing—Edward Atwood, forward; George Caldwell, manager; Victor Hemming, center. Seated—Maurice "Motsy" Dalton, guard; Raymond Edler, captain and guard, and Donald Korst, forward.

Winning twenty-one out of twenty-five games in the hardest schedule of basketball games in the history of the sport in Janesville, the present Lakota Cardinals team closed their second successful season recently. The city has just reason for being elated and proud over the showing of the Lakotas, who are truly representative of the city, having won the state high school title for the J. H. S. in 1913.

Basketball has become the chief winter sport in this city. At times the interest and enthusiasm run high over the exhibition, almost to a fever heat, especially during the three game series with Rockford and Company E, or Oswego. The four teams scored the Lakotas were by Red Wing, Minnesota, at Red Wing; Company E, Fond du Lac; Rockford Company K, and Muscatine. The Lakotas game and beating Red Wing gave Rockford and Company E two trimmings and the only defeat registered that could be considered a blemish against their record was from Muscatine, when three of the regulars, Edler, Hemming and Korst, were not playing. On the strength of their record the Lakotas claim the championship of the middle west. The Whitings of the middle west, the Peoria, Rockford and the Peoria, Tigers, title holders in Illinois, and the Oakland Golds were in this state, had an undefeated record and claimed the title until they were drubbed 47 to 16.

During the season the Lakotas have run up a total score of 839 as compared to their opponents' 563. Eddie Atwood achieved a notable score of 108 field goals. This is an average of over one goal a game, as Atwood did not play in but twenty games. Edler scored ninety-three; Hemming, eighty-seven; Korst, forty-five, and Dalton fifteen. Yes, 'Motsy' Dalton really did shoot six goals in the Tomah exhibition. Young, who played five games, scored fifteen, and the remaining points were from seven thirty-three four shots and goals scored by Stewart, Grey, and Haas, who filled aggregation, and therefore has no blemish on his record. He is proving himself mighty handy ball player for the Fielder Jones outfit, and is likely to retain his job for many years to come. He is not only a good hitter and fielder and a fast man in the bases, but an intelligent player in every respect.

Davis, pitcher of the Kileen high school, Kileen, Texas, claims the world strikeout record. He struck out 24 batters in a game with the Kileen high school in nine innings. Kileen won the game 23 to 3.

In at several times. In about one-quarter of the contests the Lakotas doubled the score on their opponents. In a Minnesota tour taken in December the Lakotas won four out of five games, losing but one contest to Red Wing. Under the coaching of Captain Edler the team developed wonderfully in the last year. With more experience at colleges, the players improved until they were the best team in the state. Every player fitted into the machine-play, doing his part, and therefore one player could not be rated above another. Atwood was the scorer and the Lakotas developed wonderfully for there is not a faster, cleaner, more accurate shot at short baskets in the west than he. An unfortunate injury to Korst prevented him from playing in the games, but he showed amazing ability at goal shooting in the contests played.

At center, Hemming outplayed every opponent, and has been a heavy counter in several tight games. Hemming was the boy to pull the home team out of defeat on the homestretch by goal shooting. Edler, at guard, played wonderful basketball this season. When the games were close and there was a real demand for sensational work, Edler was always right on the job, and he outscored the forwards who played against him three to one. He played the running guard and was the "brains" of the team. Diminutive Dalton was the favorite of the team. The Lakotas forgave him for his fondness to mix it for his guarding. George Caldwell, the Rockford star, can testify as to his guarding ability. In close games no forward ever got over three baskets over Dalton. When Korst was injured young of Rockford played several games at guard. This player added strength to the team. Being a sensational basket shooter, a star dribbler and an effective guard, Young was always welcomed by the Janesville fans.

Next year several of the players may be lost for the Lakotas. By combining eastern and western basketball methods the Lakotas perfected a system that could not be checked by teams playing only western style. At the eighteen home games the attendance averaged over six hundred, far more than any past season.

Japanese Proverbs.
Proverbs have great influence with the Japanese in their daily lives, according to a writer in the Christian Register. Among their countless adages these, with their English equivalents, are quoted: "Some insects feed upon smartweed" (There is no accounting for tastes). "If in a hurry, go round" (The more haste, the less speed). "Live under your own hat" (Let well enough alone). "The mouth is the front gate to misfortune" (The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity).

CENTRAL STATE LEAGUE OPENS SCHEDULE TODAY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Beaver Dam, Wis., April 29.—The Central State league will open its season tomorrow with the Milwaukee team playing here, Johnson Creek at Watertown and Port Atkinson at Whitewater. Beaver Dam won last year's pennant and has gathered practically the same team for this year's race. Watertown always has had a good team and Manager Pete Kronitz expects his boys to be in the running again this season. Whitewater has rounded up a new team composed of experienced players, and Port Atkinson is claiming the flag before the season starts. Little is known of Johnson Creek but early reports are that they will have a good aggregation. The league is one of the most flourishing minors in the state.

WHAT THE IRISH SINN FEIN MEANS

"Sinn Fein" is an Irish word, meaning "Ourselves," but its real meaning is "Ourself alone," so that its adoption by the revolutionists in arms against England, indicates that they are first of all self-reliant. The Sinn Fein body are the followers of the Confederates, the United Irishmen and the Fenians, who believed that the Irish, like all other peoples, had the right to govern themselves. In the present movement for freedom the Sinn Fein men are acting on the national axiom, "England's difficulty is Ireland's opportunity." It is a mistake to say that Germany alone is responsible for creating this revolution. If the spirit of revolution was not a part of the national soul of Ireland, no powers outside of Ireland could create it. No outside influence created the Fenian revolution. Its men and women were all from that sturdy Irish stock which has faith in God and country and which the power of England never did and never will subvert. Of course, it is natural for Kaiser William to wish this Irish revolution success and perhaps aid it a little if he can.

MR. INSURANCE AGENT DON'T ANTE-DATE POLICIES; IT'S STATE LAW VIOLATION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., April 29.—Ante-dating of insurance policies which results in changing the age of entry of the applicant, is a violation of law and prohibited by the statutes of the state. This is the ruling of Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary in a letter to the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. "I am advised that my predecessor authorized companies to ante-date policies for a period not exceeding six months, provided this privilege was extended to all applicants," says Commissioner Cleary. "No ruling to this effect, however, appears in the records of the department. I am also advised that several companies in this state are at present indulging in this practice."

So important is the ruling considered that Commissioner Cleary says that a copy of it will be sent to all life insurance companies in Wisconsin. He declares that the practice of ante-dating policies has already resulted in producing acrimonious and harmful conditions.

YOU KNOW THEM

Janesville People Helped By CAS-KA. See Names.

Ask Mr. J. P. Baker or any of his employees if they ever saw any Medicine sell like CAS-KA. Come to the Drug Store any day and see for Yourself.

1,200 JANESVILLE CITIZENS HELPED BY CAS-KA WHILE HERE ADVERTISING. OVER 1,500 CITIZENS ARE TRYING CAS-KA DAILY.

The following is a sample of some of the mail orders we secure for CAS-KA:

J. C. Harland, 110 Rock street, employee of Harness Mfg. Co., says, "Yes, Cas-ka has helped my wife for rheumatism and I was feeling all run down and will say it has helped us both. For the bowels it is the best ever taken. It does not gripe."

Robert Krahmer, 1020 McKee Blvd., "I will say that I was surprised to have any medicine help me like Cas-ka. I was bothered with rheumatism and kidney trouble and if the next bottle does me as much good as the first I will feel that I am cured."

G. L. Sharp, with the West Side Hitch Barn, Franklin St., says, "Any person will see what Cas-ka has done for him for pimples on the face. Also Mr. Sharp was bothered with his stomach, having that distress and bloating after eating which does not bother him any more."

H. F. Huser, 120 South Franklin St., with the Lichtfus Coal & Wood Co., says: "Yes, Cas-ka has been the only thing I ever took that helped my rheumatism and I have tried everything I ever heard of for the past three years. I have bought five bottles. My wife has taken one for the kidneys and backache. It has helped her also. Also I am going to get more before the price goes up to one dollar a bottle. We have never felt so well in years as now."

Edinburgh, N. D.

F. J. McMillan, Racine, Wis.

Dear Sir: I have been taking CAS-KA and so has my wife, for rheumatism. We have used it in our family for the last three years. I have been selling a number of bottles to my friends. I have been sending to a drug store at Fargo, N. D. for it and paid $1 a bottle. Now, I would like to know if I or some one else could not get the agency here and get the medicine at wholesale rate.

Yours truly,

BEN TRONSLIN, Edinburgh, N. D.

(Mr. Tronslin is cashier of the State Bank of Edinburgh, N. D.)

Mr. F. J. McMillan, Racine, Wis.: Dear Sir: I have received the gross of CAS-KA as ordered. It was in good shape. They were packed very good. Please find check inclosed for same.

Yours truly,

BEN TRONSLIN, Cashier State Bank of Edinburgh.

Here are a few of the main testimonials from druggists Mr. McMillan has in his possession. These men would not tell a falsehood or they would not be in the office they hold, and their words cannot be bought. Read what these men say of CAS-KA.

St. Cloud, Minn.

To the Drug Trade: This is to certify that F. J. McMillan, who has been selling and advertising CAS-KA in our store has been both upright and honest in his dealings with us and has given entire satisfaction both to us and the general public.

A FIVE-ROOM BUNGALOW—24x37 FT.
"Home of Character"—No. 195

In this bungalow the foundation, porch piers and chimney are built of chocolate brick and the siding is ordinary siding painted a warm brown and the shingles are stained brown. The arrangement of the porch across the front in connection with the main roof lines presents a pleasing and homelike appearance.

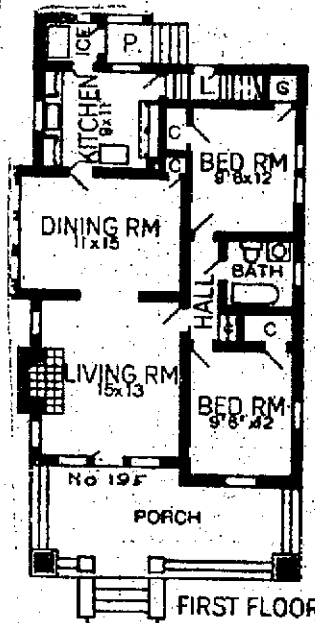

The gables have windows lighting the attic space, which is reached through a manhole in the connecting hall between the bedrooms. This manhole has a balanced stairway that is let down from the ceiling, in which way storage space in the attic is of easy access and use.

The first floor provides for six rooms and a bath, with entrance to the sleeping quarters off the living room. The dining room opens off of the living room, and the kitchen is located at the rear of the house with grade landing, stairs to cellar, ice room and kitchen porch.

The chimney to the fireplace on the side wall of the living room is exposed and adds greatly to the effect of the exterior.

A bungalow of this size and design can be built, with basement, heating plant and complete equipment for a northern climate, for from $2500 to $3000. As built in the south and west it would cost considerably less.

Be sure to give the number of the house and to address "Homes of Character" Dept., The Gazette, when you make inquiries concerning these homes. Answers to your letters free of charge.

INSTANTANEOUS

It's the difference between
SOMETIME and ANYTIME

With an Automatic Water Heater in your home you know that when you turn the hot water faucet you will instantly get HOT WATER any time. It is not merely lukewarm or tepid—it's HOT, boiling, steaming HOT and unlimited.

You will be surprised at the economy and delighted with the convenience. You may try an Automatic Water Heater in your home for 30 days. Let us send a representative and explain this heater to you.

EVERY MODERN HOME SHOULD BE WIRED FOR ELECTRICITY

Electricity is the modern servant in the house—it furnishes light at night, heat for cooking, power to run the sewing machine or vacuum cleaner.

It does not cost much to have this great modern necessity in the home

When you begin to plan your home let us send a representative to tell you how little it costs to wire your house for electricity.
